Debra K. Tanzi has been hired in the business development office of the Utah Division of Business and Economic Development to help Utah's defense-related sectors make the transition in a downsizing of military procurements.

She will be involved with the Hill/DDO Group, which is fighting to save Hill Air Force Base from closure, and other efforts to convert government resources and technology to private sector usage. Rick Mayfield, division director, said Tanzi is playing a vital role in the current economic development plans in the area of defense conversion. "This focus is an important element in the Leavitt administration's economic development plan," he said.
